

season been playing quarter, and his work in tackling and breaking up interference has been a feature of the university's games. He is one of Washington's best men at advancing the ball. Duffy, the other end, is a sure and often a brilliant player.

Geary the Best Man.

Geary, the quarterback, is well known was promptly voted down, and all seemed anxious for a full and exhaustive debate before fixing, by a majority vote, the attitude of the chamber. As the hour grew late it was evident that all who wished to speak on the subject could not be heard in the afternoon, and by unanimous consent the debate was adjourned to Monday evening, when it is believed the dis-treaty, and as it may further be by the Hay-Pauncefote agreement. The report states first, that the canal, if constructed, should be under the absolute control of the United States; not free to the unrestricted commerce of all nations, nor liable to become the property in time of war of the first belligerent that reaches it. Aside from this the three committeemen

CAPTAINS OF RIVAL FOOTBALL TEAMS TALK OF COMING GAME.

THE Washington men could not be in better physical condition for the championship game, and our team work,

I believe, will be a surprise to the local experts. We shall play to win. It is impossible, of course, to predict the result of the match, but if we are defeated we shall die hard, and Pullman will not have a walkover, as many people suppose, although two of our best men, Corson and Campbell, are sick and cannot play.

A. P. CALHOUN,

Captain University of Washington Team.

WE have come across the mountains with a clean score and are going to do our very best to keep up our season's record. We do not expect to lose, but if we are outclassed we shall be the first to congratulate the victors. Both teams represent the true college spirit of the state of Washington. We are going to give a clean exhibition of American sport. I am confident of my men, and all personal considerations will be set aside for the sake of the college whose colors we wear.

J. O. ELTON,

Captain Washington Agricultural College Team.

to Seattle people, having played last year on the high school teams. He is probably the best man the university has had in recent years at his position. His field generalship is unusually good and to him may be attributed, in a large degree, the fast and snappy work the team has lately been doing.

The half backs will be played by Hill and Hueston, the former of whom is particularly well known to Seattle. He was last year captain of the team and played at left end. He is a good man with the ball, taking every possible advantage of his interference. He is a strong tackler and will probably excel at breaking up the Pullman interference. Hill may do the punting for the team. He has been showing up well in practice, his kicks averaging between forty-five and fifty yards, and a final vote reached.

Prior to the reading of the reports at yesterday's meeting Secretary Prosch read a review of the past actions of the Chamber with reference to the canal project.

The Majority Report.

The majority report of the committee, signed by John J. McQuivray, S. Fraumath, John P. Hartman and Andrew Childberg, deals at length with the past actions of the Chamber favorable to the canal, quoting in full a strong expression in that behalf from the annual report of the Chamber for 1891. The signers find no reason for any change in the attitude of the Chamber, but insist that the construction of the canal will stimulate and increase the trade of the Northwest with all parts of the world the connect-tion, and as it may further be by the Hay-Pauncefote agreement. The report states first, that the canal, if constructed, should be under the absolute control of the United States; not free to the unrestricted commerce of all nations, nor liable to become the property in time of war of the first belligerent that reaches it. Aside from this the three committeemen believe that the national government might better spend the cost price of the canal in the reclamation of arid lands, of in subsidizing the merchant marine. It is admitted that the canal may benefit this state in some of its resources, but it is not believed that such benefit will compensate for the loss of the commerce which is being developed here and is here now.

Judge McQuivray's motion to adopt the majority report brought the question before the Chamber, and discussion ensued. The burden of the defense of the canal project fell upon Hon. Watson C. Squire, who during his term as United States senator was a member of the Nicaragua canal committee. Mr. Squire spoke frequently and earnestly in support of the majority report and in response to ques-

Edward

Those of attle who last night when Edw pianist, beg tions, being Grieg. Rub gave him Mr. Perry strength and to make the and with it finish of st execution admiration strength he minute gr a delicacy performance a Particular composition showed ex solid tone tional grasp of Chopin indulging in Chopin play

Mr. Perry Friday evening known later

"Shen

Aside from are so rea Litt's mag doah," ther of good pl doah" tells the story of breaking o is on the tion of ma cer. The declaration, votedly. I rages, and before the meet, and enemy. It waits only From a Co by the tim into a Unio dying about ed.

The girl health. L final act of stage with they have end of the "Shenando the Seattle mencing ton

Two perf and a Nigh Grand oper evening is matinee will ance.

The Pulli guests of t at this ever dents will have any and many

Mr. Curri best agree yet to visit has the sta throughout.

"Tha

That Ma tion at the week, pres party, is re treatment o theme of t who hits u